CONTESTS IN DEMOCRATIC CAUGUS PARISIAN

Jeremiah J. Donovan Defeats William T. Delaney for Assessor and Joseph T. Williams Defeats Stephen D. Moore -Largest Vote Cast Was 347-Present Selectmen Renominated.

Contests for the nominations for issessors took place in the democratic sucus on Monday evening in the town fall, where $47 votes were cast in one case and $98 in the other, with Jershiah J. Donovan and Joseph F. Williams winning the nominations.

The crowd at the town hall filled will the seats and there were also a number standing at the rear of the hall when Town Committee Chairman the counting difficult, and John M. Lee said he thought a vote in the usual way of passing before the clerks was the only fair way to settle a contest.

The crowd at the town hall filled all the seats and there were also a number standing at the rear of the hall when Town Committee Chairman Errol C. Lillibridge called the meeting to order at 3 o'clock and Archibald
S. Spaiding was promptly nominated and elected as chairman of the caucus.

S. Spalding was promptly nominated and elected as chairman of the caucus.

Chairman Spalding invited all those at the rear to fill up the seats in front and then said he wanted to thank the caucus for the compliment it had paid him in choosing him as chairman for a meeting that so much seemed to presage democratic victory at the polls.

The reasons why this town should remain in democratic hands Mr. Spaiding said, would be given probably by those who made the nominations, but

The reasons why this town should remain in democratic hands Mr. Spaiding said, would be given probably by those who made the nominations, but if there were contests he advised that differences. if there were contests he advised that differences be forgotten afterwards and that united strength he given to the ticket. It is a good democrat, who bears defeat, he said, and he reminded the caucus that these gatherings had always been marked by an absence of unkind and discourteous remarks.

Michael J. Curran and Judge Thomas J. Kelly were nominated and elected clerks, but Judge Kelly was not present, and John F. Craney was made the second clerk after Dr. Patrick J. Cassidy had said he was "not in the running" when his name had been suggested.

First Selectman Renominated. For the nomination for first select-nan, William H. Shields took the oor and said he believed there would be but one voice as to who should lead the ticket to victory. For the past six years the same democratic selectmen have administered the town af-fairs and it was worth while to review the record. It was one that could not be equalled by any town of the size of Norwich for honesty, efficiency and economy.

Mr. Shields took up the record from 1910 to 1915, quoting the town treasurer's figures on debt reduction. It has been reduced by $110,060.44, certainly a record worthy of consideration. Men who make such a record in times, of extravagance deserve re-nomination. In the coming town report, the selectmen will ask for only 4 3-4 mills, where last year they ask-ed 6 mills, $120,000 less money than a year ago. (Applause.)

Mr. Shields said that the republican caucus of a few days ago had not given any reason for a change in party control and he made humorous references to what had been said in the nominating speeches at the republican The speaker claimed that the business showing made by the democratic control would entitle it to a continuance of the men in control if this were a business proposition, and he nominated Albert W Lillibridge, the present incumbent, for first selectman. It is our honor that he will accept the nomination, concluded Mr. Shields

Second Selectman on Ticket Again. Joseph T. Fanning made the nom-ination for second selectman, saying that it would be a mystery hard to explain why any business man should vote against the democratic candidate after the explanations that had been Charles Evans has returned to his home on Smith avenue after passing a few days in Boston and Willimantic. town money, the actual expenses of the town passing a few days in Boston and Willimantic.

Mr. Fitzgerald nominated William T. Delaney of the fifth district.
Charles V. James started to bring forward a name for assessor, saying his nominee's name had long been before the party, but at this point he was interrupted by Stephen D. Moore, who told him he was speaking under a misapprehension and Mr. James said he would make his nomination later.

Chairman Spalding declared Mr. Donovan elected and Mr. Fitzgerald moved to make the nomination unanimous, which was done.

Such a large caucus, said John J. Corkery, as he rose to nominate for second assessor, showed a pretty healty on condition in the party. Predictions about burying the party seemed not to have been fulfilled. The nominations made at this caucus had shown that men of experience were favored.

Mr. Corkery said he should nominate a man who had been four years in the common council, had been on the water board and had served four months as assessor. He nominated Joseph F.

Live on Different Plane.

"We are likely to forget that Americans, all of them, live on a different plane from the masses in Europe, in-tolelectually and commercially. We cannot endure the things they can. Our laboring class has risen above many rivations; we prohibit child labor. They do not. Our enlightened system is expensive. It gives Europeans an advantage in the trade race. While America is banker for the world now, we should not feel too secure."

The financial systems of conflicting countries face ruin, Mr. Smith believes, but that famine and decay will follow he considers by no means certain.

It often happens that the parents are assisted In the evasion of the law by their compatriots who are in the business of compatriots who are in the business of farming out children.

The law is evaded by fraudulent practices such as the personation of the parents and the procuring from the old country certificates of birth of children which, though in legal form, contain statements which are not true, A flagrant instance of this evasion in Middletown recently came to the notice of the state educational authorities. A man represented himself to be the man represented himself to be the father of a child who, according to the certificate, was over school age, but who in reality was under it.
